Leonhard Fuld Collection of International Police Uniforms Finding Aid

Ellen Belcher
Special collections Librarian
July 2013

Size: one box (.25 linear feet)

Provenience unknown

Date: 1930s?

Collection Description:

This collection consists of 57 photographs of police officers modeling in their uniforms as well as some photos of police accessories. Each photograph is identified on the back with its country name. Many of these countries are identified by their colonial names. Possibly these uniforms are of colonial troops. A few dates on the back of the photos refer to the 1930s. These photos are alphabetically arranged by country. This collection of photographs was perhaps collected through connections made during his research for his dissertation, which was later published as Police Administration: A Critical Study of Police Organizations in the United States and Abroad.

The collection is available for study without restrictions by appointment in our special collections room.

Biographical note:

Dr. Leonhard Felix Fuld was the author of several works on public administration, police administration and civil service. He was educated at Columbia University and taught at Baruch College among other institutions. His philanthropy primarily benefitted many educational institutions providing education for nurses. Dr. Fuld lived with his sister, Florentine at 130 East 110th Street until her death in 1953 afterward he lived in Trenton on Fuld Street. He helped establish training academies for the NYPD as well as the Rochester and Washington police forces. He established the Cities Service School for Security Salesman as well as teaching in at Baruch School of Business and Public Administration, at that time part of CCNY.

Fuld's fortune was said to come from Harlem real estate and the stock market. In 1958 the Leonhard Felix Fuld Investment Foundation portfolio was created consisting of one share of stock from every company sold on the NY Stock Exchange, which upon his death was given to the Wharton School of University of Pennsylvania allowing students to attend stockholder's meetings and obtain financial reports.
